Studio Mitt is a collaborative architectural practice actively involved in architectural design education within South-East Queensland universities. This two-day workshop provides an opportunity for secondary school students to learn more about studying architecture at a tertiary level. www.studiomitt.com.au
This design workshop is led by Kahn Neil, director of Studio Mitt and Lecturer at UQ. Kahn graduated from UQ Architecture with honours and has worked in leading Queensland architecture practices before establishing Studio Mitt. Studio Mitt is a collaborative studio invested in the practice of architecture, teaching and research. Kahn has also taught architectural design continuously for the past six years at UQ.

This two-day workshop provides an opportunity for secondary school students to learn more about studying architecture at UQ.

The design studio: Students will experience the day-to-day learning environment and facilities they will encounter during the studio-based architectural design courses at the University of Queensland. Design process: Students will be introduced to creative problem solving in architectural design by working through a design exercise for a hypothetical project, assisted by experienced studio advisors. Aspects of architectural design process including human need, constraint generation and solution testing, will be explored in project mode. Measuring, scale and communicating design ideas: Students will be introduced to basic measuring, drawing conventions and the concept of scale in drawings, further to communicating ideas about form, space and human occupation.

There are no pre-requisite skills required for participation in this workshop and students will be provided with all required materials.

WORKSHOP INFORMATION

COST: $220 per student

LOCATION: Architecture Studios Zelman Cowen Building
The University of Queensland
St Lucia, Brisbane

TIME: Workshop hours are between 9am -4pm.
A workshop outline will be circulated ahead of the first session.

BRING: Your lunch (or you can purchase lunch on campus)
A water bottle
All other materials for workshop will be provided

CONTACT: To register your interest for this workshop, please contact us at info@studiomitt.com.au or via our website studiomitt.com.au